at least 2,000 idle men within the ranks of organized labor in Salt Lake, and ra than that number in the unskilled trades, was the statement made Tuesday night by representatives of the building trades council. That the numer of idle men is increasing almost laily and will continue to do so from ow on during the winter, was the fur-

Speaking of the local labor situation Jack Munsey, of the building trades ouncil, said:

The lists of idle men in the different unions embraced in the trades council show a conservative estimate of at east 2,000. There are 16 trades repreented in the council, and each union s carying a list of idle men that will ary from 20 to 200, and in one or two astances the figures will go to 250 men. There are several reasons for this. Dur There are several reasons for this. During the past two months there has been a large influx of workingmen and skilled laborers, attracted here by the false reports of the scarcity of labor. Building operations are on the wane, and each few days see the completion of a building that has been under construction during the summer, but there are practically no new buildings being that offset this and consequently. to offset this, and consequently fale list is being constantly added

CARPENTERS IDLE.

J. G. Wilkes, business representative of the combined carpenters' unions, and also representative of the building rades council, corroborated Mr. Mun-

The large number of idle men," Mr. Wilkes said, "is particularly noticeable n the carpenters' trade. There are more men and is less work by 40 per cent than it this time last year. I was going over our records one day last week, and it showed that on that day we had so more idle carpenters than on the milar day of the previous year. Of ourse, last year there was a great deal mill work going on in the surrounding towns, and there is but little of ut this year. When The News reporter visited these headquarters for idle men, Tuesday, there were about a dozen men loafing about each place.

At Captain Woods's headquarters on Fourth South, the place was closed, but the information was secured that there were from two to three applications daily for work, some being transients, some poor people of the city.

Occasionally a ragged, dirty fellow will enter the Army quarters with the declaration that he can get a job if only he can "put up a good front." So the man in charge of the store department gets busy. He picks out a pair of trousers for 25 cents, a coat for 35 cents and a vest for a dime, or an entire suit for from $1 to $1.50. He can get "just a dandy" suit, tailor cleaned and pressed suit for $250, and the applicant, after being fitted out with collar, hat, shirt, tie, shoes, etc., at correspondingly low figures, and a bath to boot, struts forth—to astonish his future employer as he tells him he is the rejuvenated applicant of an hour before.

FUNERAL OF J. W. BURT.

Casket Carried to Grave by Old Comrades of Police Department,

Funeral services over the body of Jo. seph W. Burt, for many years identified with the local police department, and who died Sunday, were held from the family home, 615 Fourth avenue Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The funeral was largely attended by the friends of the deceased officer, and the esteem in which he was held was manifested in the profusion of floral tribifested in the profusion of floral tributes.

The services were conducted by Bishop Herbert Foulger. William Tuddenham, who had been a boyhood companion of Mr. Burt, spoke on the worth of the decedent and the high regard in which he had been held during his life time. Nephi L. Morris was the principal speaker, dwelling upon the resurrection and giving words of consolation to the bereaved family.

A double quartet chosen from the Twenty-first ward choir, rendered "I Need Thee Every Hour," and Prof. Charles Kent sang "Some Sweet Day, Bye and Bye." The services were closed with a prayer by Bishop Woolley.

The palibearers were chosen from the police department in which Mr. Burt had rendered such efficient and faithful service, and were Edward Janney, George Chase, Richard L. Shannon, William Carey, Howard Wilson and Fred Schultze. The interment was in the city cemetery. Fred Schultze T the city cemetery.

PROHIBITION IN MORGAN COUNTY

President Daniel Heiner of the Stake Tells of the Situation.

MERCHANTS ARE SATISFIED

Report That Bills Are Being Paid and Business Shows Marked Improvement Since Change.

Daniel Heiner, president of the Mor gan stake of Zion, is in Salt Lake today on a business trip and is incidentally telling his acquaintances of the success of local option in Morgan and vicinity.

'We do not have local option," h remarked, "for it is simply a case of prohibition, and it is impossible to get liquor unless one sends to Ogden or elsewhere for it. After the law went into effect we experienced some trouble with the club which was organized for so-called social purposes. You know the style of institution: you pay $1 and that gives you the privilege of joining the club and inviting your friends to the place where for a consideration you can get all the liquor you want. Since this club was closed up we have experienced no trouble whatever. Of course some little trade goes to Ogden, but the merchants report that since prohibition went into effect in Morgan the people have been paying their bills and trade has picked up generally. Under this showing the merchants do not elsewhere for it. After the law went and trade has picked up generally. Under this showing the merchants do not find fault that some of the trade gets away from them, as they feel that they can do without the trade of the men who go where whisky is sold.

"When the saloons were running in Morgan it was no uncommon thing for a man to come to town with a load of produce, sell it and return home without a cent. I have seen one man in

"There is one woman of good family that I know whose husband was an inveterate drinker. The wife was pale and 'sad-eyed and the children sorely neglected. Today conditions around the home have changed and there is an improvement all along the line. While the man sends to Ogden occasionally for liquor and keeps it in the house, he no longer gets drunk and hangs around no longer gets drunk and hangs around the saloons.
